Landry Jones to sit for NFL's Black Monday The NFL announced early Monday morning that Dallas Cowboys quarterback Landry Jones will be inactive for Dallas' home game against the Minnesota Vikings. Jones, who was named the Cowboys' starter in Week 1, will miss Sunday's game against the Vikings after the team informed the NFL that he was going to have surgery to repair a torn right rotator cuff during a private visit with Dr. James Andrews. The team first went public with the news following a visit to Andrews on Thursday. Jones had been listed as questionable all week and landed on the active/inactive list after Cowboys owner Jerry Jones indicated that the team's doctors weren't comfortable with Jones playing on the injured shoulder. Jones took over as the starter from Tony Romo, who was placed on injured reserve with a fractured right thumb on Thursday. The Cowboys acquired Jones from Pittsburgh in a trade this offseason as he started seven games at Pittsburgh in 2015. Jones threw four interceptions against the New York Giants in the preseason before throwing only 12 in 10 games last season.Q: if ϕ is an even function, does this imply edd6d56e20
