Pyramids and the Sphinx Windows 7 Theme is a wallpaper that represents Giza Pyramids and Sphinx. There is only one particular point you need to remember. The Giza pyramids actually consist of the Great Pyramids of Giza, the Khafre's Pyramid, Mykerinos' pyramid and the Great Sphinx of Giza which is the most famous part of the complex and the oldest known statue. The Giza Pyramids cover a total area of 13.5 square kilometers. The Giza pyramids are the most important and the most famous in the world. The Giza pyramids consist of the Great Pyramid of Giza (known as the Great Pyramid and the Pyramid of Cheops or Khufu), the somewhat smaller Pyramid of Khafre (or Chephren) a few hundred meters to the south-west, and the relatively modest-sized Pyramid of Menkaure (or Mykerinos) a few hundred meters further south-west. The Great Sphinx of Giza lies on the east side of the complex, facing east and is the oldest known monumental sculpture, and is commonly believed to have been built by ancient Egyptians of the Old Kingdom in the reign of the pharaoh Khafra. Amongst other popular Egyptian pyramids away from the complex are the the Pyramid of Djoser (step pyramid), the Bent Pyramid and the Red Pyramids. LingvoSoft KEYMACRO Macros help keep track of the words and phrases you use most often while typing. Your personal dictionary of terms is imported to KEYMACRO automatically when you install and use the program. Over 2,000 terms are already in the dictionary. The "Key" is the word you type most. Macro functions are the stuff you type to get things done. Macros are written in a more complex language called MacroScript, which allows you to use a variety of different commands and procedures. You can create a macro to type the same word hundreds of times, so you can easily train your typing skills. The Macros can also be easily edited, which allows you to make changes to speed up or slow down your typing, and even change the words or phrases being used. You can even import macros created by other KEYMACRO users. You can check for new updates to your dictionary right from the program. You can "look up" specific words in the dictionary. Keyboard users can save their favorite word to "My Favorites." KEYMACRO includes many example macros to show you how to create new macros or edit existing ones. Using "Auto Suggest" you can type the first few characters of the word and then let KEYMACRO finish the rest of the word. Keyword finder function lets you search for words and phrases on the Internet. You can "look up" specific words in the dictionary. Keyboard users can save their favorite word to "My Favorites." The program allows you to export macros from the program and import macros created by other KEYMACRO users. KEYMACRO is an easy-to-use software program that lets you quickly and easily create your own personal dictionary of terms, or learn new words and phrases, while you type. The "Key" is the word you type most. Macro functions are the stuff you type to get things done. Macros are written in a more complex language called MacroScript, which allows you to use a variety of different commands and procedures. KEYMACRO is free for personal use, but for those who find it helpful, a small donation will be appreciated. Magnify is a lightweight tool that lets you zoom in on areas of interest, grab mouse coordinates, and even HTML RGB color code. Q: How to run code during setup of a Class Library? The project is Visual Studio 2017 C#. I want to run some code during the setup phase of the project, specifically, when the Class Library is installed. I understand that I should start with the class library, then I should add the Setup and Initialization code. I see a class called Setup.cs, but I don't see any code inside it. This is the way I want to initialize my class library. public void Run() { //The following code goes into a class called Initialize in class library Startup //in the method Initialize. //Get the app data directory var appDataPath = Path.Combine(AppContext.BaseDirectory, "data"); //Get the registry data directory var regDataPath = Path.Combine(appDataPath, "registry"); //Convert appdata into a registry var copy = Directory.Exists(appDataPath)? Directory.GetFiles(appDataPath, ".", SearchOption.AllDirectories) : new[] { Directory.GetFiles(appDataPath, ".", SearchOption.AllDirectories) }; var regPath = Path.Combine(regDataPath, "settings.json"); if (copy.Any()) { //Copy the registry foreach (var path in copy) { var fileName = Path.GetFileName(path); File.Copy(path, Path.Combine(regPath, fileName), true); } } else { //Create registry var json = File.ReadAllText(regPath); JsonConvert.DeserializeObject(json); } } This is how I want to run it. public void Main(string[] args) { Run(); } A: Unfortunately, you cannot do this, the way you described. It will not run until you actually add your class library to a project. If you
