If you have any question, write me. Q: How to update the Android Activity in a service The scenario I have an Android application which has a main activity and a Service running in the background. In the main activity, there is a button which when pressed, starts a service which, amongst other things, downloads some information from a server and stores them in an object. What's happening When I start the service, the service starts downloading but the main activity is still in the foreground. To access the same information, I need to press the button again. What I want to happen How can I fix the issue above? How can I make it so the service finishes downloading and updates the activity automatically? A: Just start the AsyncTask new DownloadFilesTask().execute()); Q: Customizing a mobile front end for 3e33713323
