This project is a survey of Thai slang and slang-like phrases and phrasal verbs used in modern Thai. It is about time the Thai language should go beyond stop motion-like pronunciation, specifically in its use of phrasal verbs. Verbs are always a big part of any language and are an integral part of speech in all languages. Its use of phrasal verbs means that the language is a sea of seas, with the master plan set by the king himself, to make a world class language, and an unrivalled speech model for the speakers of the nation, which would result in world dominance. Thats right, the Thai language is a sovereign king and can do as it pleases. And it does. The reason why the Thai language doesn't have a working examination system or a working guidelines to teachers of the language is that it knows it only has to play by its own rules on the world stage, and not to answer to other countries. Its king decreed that the Thai language shall only be used to be used for communication to the world with its monarch in the style of a king does with his subjects, in the way the ruler does with the subjects. Many nations only have one official language. China is a good example of this. But Thailand has two- Thais and Burmese. The Thai language is aiming to conquer the world and it intends to do it alone. How can it achieve this? It has identified the standard way of speaking that the rulers wish for their subjects to speak, and is now able to add to this in order to make Thai superior to other languages in the world, and therefore better, and stronger. For example, generally, the Thai language uses more phrasal verbs than normal sentences. 4:22 Naturism Thailand Naturism Thailand Naturism Thailand What is Naturism?
