The subproject and investigator (PI) may have received primary funding from another NIH source, and thus could be represented in other CRISP entries. The institution listed is for the Center, which is not necessarily the institution for the investigator. The Laboratory of Cellular and Molecular Microbiology has developed two important experimental tools. The first is a plasmid vector designed for long-term expression of foreign DNA in the yeast. The pRS416 is an autonomously replicating plasmid, which is replicated in Saccharomyces cerevisiae. The other tool is an efficient transformation system. We have used the latter approach to identify and characterize yeast mutants that are defective in proper cell wall biogenesis. Most of these mutants are in 3e33713323
